This State Government Planning and Design Code is a waste of money given local councils have recently been changing urban infill rules due to complaints for residents. The State Government now wants to undo all of that with a generic plan across all metro areas that no one wants? How ridiculous and a waste of money. I live in a street where houses are being knocked down to build 2 or 3 smaller places and parking is an issue, particularly as our street is narrow. Not to mention the climate change impacts of increased concrete and buildings with less lawn and trees - aren't we meant to be addressing climate change, not making it worse? Why would you do that? I think you will find that most residents would not want this plan - you would do well to listen to your constituents and climate change scientists. I'm not sure how much more clear they can be about this problem! Show some leadership and prepare a plan that addresses climate change as the number one priority - PLEASE!!
