The central archives are a non-exhaustive record of Aboriginal heritage in South Australia. You are advised that Aboriginal heritage (sites, objects, or remains) may exist within your search area, even though there is no record.

The Aboriginal Heritage Act 1988 (SA) (Act) protects all Aboriginal sites, objects, and remains, whether known or unknown, in South Australia from unauthorised impacts, and irrespective of whether they are recorded in the central archives.

Under the Act, it is a criminal offence to excavate, damage, disturb, and/or interfere with Aboriginal heritage, or to remove it from South Australia, without authority.

Penalties include fines up to $2 million for companies, fines up to $250,000 and/or two years imprisonment for individuals, forfeiture of profits achieved by impacting heritage, orders to remediate damage caused, compensation orders to Traditional Owners, and more.

If an activity that you are planning is likely to impact Aboriginal heritage, you must first seek and achieve authorisation from the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs (Minister) to do so. Please note that neither native title bodies nor Traditional Owners can authorise impacts to Aboriginal heritage in South Australia - only the Minister can do so in accordance with the Act.

Penalties include fines up to $2 million for companies, fines up to $250,000 and/or two years imprisonment for individuals, forfeiture of profits achieved by impacting heritage, orders to remediate damage caused, compensation orders to Traditional Owners, and more.

If an activity that you are planning is likely to impact Aboriginal heritage, you must first seek and achieve authorisation from the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs (Minister) to do so. All authorisation requests are subject to public consultation and referral to the State Aboriginal Heritage Committee.

The Act requires that all suspected Aboriginal heritage discoveries are reported to the Minister via AAR as soon practicable. Significant penalties apply for a failure to report.

This letter does not address any potential obligations under the Native Title Act 1993 (Cth), such as a requirement for an Indigenous Land Use Agreement. Please note that neither native title bodies nor Traditional Owners can authorise impacts to Aboriginal heritage in South Australia - only the Minister can do so in accordance with the Act.
